South Holland Municipal Band Audition Policy (Revised February 2014):

(Note: Current members of the South Holland Municipal Band do not need an audition.)

In order to preserve the musical integrity of the band, prospective new members must pass an audition with the director. We are no longer accepting members on referral only. The criteria for entrance into the band are: acceptable levels of technical proficiency, musicianship, and sight-reading skills.

Auditions may be arranged by contacting the director, Roland Rose. Those individuals auditioning will be asked to sight-read passages of music of a comparable level to the music to be played throughout the season (mostly levels 2-3½). Should anyone happen to fail the audition, he/she would be welcome to apply again in any subsequent year, with the strong recommendation that he/she pursues private study and other performance opportunities designed to enhance his/her skills. The decision of the director is final in all cases.

Interested members must fill out the contact information below and bring it to their audition. Please make sure all information is legible.
